

CAUGHT IN COUNTY COURT.

Judge Cansler Was Kept Busy All Day Yesterday.

County Judge Cansler had a busy day yesterday.

His morning was consumed in hearing testimony in the case of the Commonwealth against Lincoln Copley. Lincoln is not fond of one of his neighbors, a widow named Meacham, and he gave expression to his feelings by heaving a collection of choice bricks and cobble stones through the glass window of his house, near the L. & N. water tank. The first time Lincoln was guilty of the offense was Monday night. Mrs. Meacham bore her annoyance with calm resignation. When on the following night he repeated the bombardment of her castle, she arose in her wrath and had him yanked before a court of justice. Lincoln was fined $15 and costs, and unless he pays it promptly he will be given all sorts of rocks to fool with for three weeks or longer.

The next person arraigned before Judge Cansler was a gentleman of color from the Bainbridge neighborhood. He was charged with plucking a number of plump pullets from the roost in Mr. Pooley Reese's hen house. The evidence was not sufficient to convict Mark, and he was given his freedom.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Sarah Spears, a highly esteemed lady of the Fruit Hill country, North Christian, was tried in the county court on a writ of inquiring de lunatico. Her mania is religion. She was ordered to be taken to the Western Asylum for treatment. She was confined there several years ago.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The Colored People are Having a Big District Meeting.

The annual meeting of District Sunday School convention of the colored Baptist church, will meet to-day at noon at the Main street Baptist church. The convention embraces the churches of several counties and fully 100 delegates are expected to be present. The meeting will continue throughout the week and over Sunday. The session will be held every day and preaching will be the order at night. Several excursion trains will be run Saturday and Sunday and a tremendous crowd is expected on those days.

"Swiped" His Hat.

Mr. John McPherson stood on the platform at the L. & N. station yesterday afternoon and watched the "sojer trains" pass by. One of the volunteers, who took a sudden liking to the town, and wanted a memento of some kind, snatched off the young man's hat. What Mr. McPherson remarked, sotto voce as he saw his headgear speeding away from him at a rate of thirty miles an hour would look out of place in a Sunday School book.

HENRY NOLEN.

Now a Prosperous Farmer in Oklahoma.

The Day County Tribune, a newspaper published at Grand, Oklahoma, contains a write-up of the farm of Mr. Wm. H. Nolen, a former citizen of Hopkinsville, from which the following extracts are taken:

"We finally drifted to Mr. W. H. Nolen's, on the South side of the flat, where we were royally entertained. Mr. Nolen and wife are from Kentucky and are making a home after the true Kentucky style. Mr. Nolen says after many misfortunes in the old State and the loss of a hard earned fortune he came to or near the Oklahoma line in Texas and commenced to farm on the shares, not being able to carry on farming within himself. After raising two crops he moved on the farm where he now lives with but little to commenced on the farm—about $175 worth of property all told.

We will describe his home as it now looks. A good residence, frame, hen-house, covered with a shingle roof, smoke house well filled, cellar, good feed yards, stock pens, long stock sheds to stable both cattle and horses, a good granary, all kinds of farm machinery, good fences around his homestead and also a school section which he has leased. Plenty of good running water on both places, a five-acre grove of black walnut trees, which have grown from the walnuts planted. Aside from the grove he has cottonwood, locust, maple and many other forest trees growing.

Russian mulberries that are full of green fruit, goose berries, peaches, apples, cherries, pears, plums, apricots, grapes, black berries and other fruit. And some young hedge growing around the orchard. The above is a model farm."

Mr. Nolen is prosperous and happily situated in his Western home, which will be pleasant news to his many friends here.
